The New Pandora . . .

It was Pandora who opened the box of troubles upon all mankind. It must have been a big box, and one wonders how she ever managed to get the lid open. She did though; but when she tried to close it again — that, apparently, wasn't so easy. There was but one thing which remained in the box. The troubles had almost overwhelmed it and it was slow to get underway. It was hope. Hope, the myth tells us, had the lid closed on her, and hence remained in the possession of mankind.

These myths, we are told, have a way of repeating themselves in succeeding ages; and if we track down the recurring image of that troublesome box in this modern age, it's likely to turn up as a radio or television set. Of course, in this electronic era one need not bother about lifting a lid — simply turn a switch or push a button and things unimaginable will tumble about your head. Poor Pandora acted upon curiosity, but curiosity is frequently the product of boredom. After all, Pandora was the first and perfect woman in a landscape empty of everything but gods. Perhaps she was bored. This is something which we moderns can understand, having turned on the radio.

All the miracles that money can buy in the way of entertainment and cultural and ideological expression are possible to the new Pandora's box. Our experience has been that this container, more than ever, is capable of spilling out a continental plague of evils. All that is required of us is curiosity or boredom, perhaps indifference, and the turn of a switch. A process of electronic leveling has made it possible for each of us to play the part of that first and most curious woman, merely by turning on the radio.

As before, our one consolation is hope. Of course, we have long ago exiled the gods who gave the original gift of evils, along with the injunction about not letting them loose. Now, we make and dispense our own evils, while hope remains under the lid. Things let loose are kinetic and may, eventually, exhaust their energy; but hope, remember, has always been confined and is best described as potential. It is a potential that awaits application. And it is here that we may have an insight into the new Pandora, because radio and television can be more than instruments which victimize our curiosity or increase our boredom. Providing, of course, that we take some action of our own other than merely turning a switch. It is to be hoped that KPFA and its community of subscribers may yet, the pale gods willing, add a new chapter to the myth of the curious lady and the troublesome box.

Special Program Notes

ARTISTS CONCERT: Those of you who heard the Griller String Quartet on November 26 will be happy to know that the Grillers will return for a second program on December 10 at 8 p.m. William Denny, whose work will be receiving its first broadcast, is a member of the faculty of the University of California. Thus, with broadcasts of these new compositions by Edmund Rubbra and Mr. Denny, we launch a series of programs by the Griller String Quartet extending over the next several months which, we expect, will include recent compositions of a number of U. of C. faculty members as well as occasional references to the standard repertoire.

PSYCHOLOGY OF MODERN MAN: This weekly series, produced in cooperation with the Alameda County Chapter of the Mental Health Society of Northern California, is being renewed in this folio with a group of programs on "Adolescent Leisure" — Tuesdays at 8 p.m. The discussions are based on recent research among Berkeley teen-agers by associate professor Davis McEntire of the Department of Social Welfare, University of California. Responsibility for the content and planning of the programs, in cooperation with KPFA, has been delegated by the Mental Health Society to Barbara Kirk, manager of the Counselling Center, University of California. Members of the planning committee include Roberta P. Foster, clinical psychologist, Child Development Center, Children's Hospital of the East Bay; William R. Sheehy, M.D., director, Berkeley State Mental Hygiene Clinic; and Clark E. Vincent, instructor, Family Sociology, University of California.

FROM THE BBC: John McCallum plays Robert the Bruce and Edmund Willard is heard as Edward I in "The King of Scots" by Robert Kemp — December 10 at 8:45 p.m. The play was first performed at Dunfermline Abbey during the 1951 Edinburgh Festival. On Wednesday, December 3, at 8 p.m., the company of the Bristol Old Vic is heard in our second broadcast of "The Prodigious Snob" — the English version by Miles Malleon of Moliere's comedy "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme". And on Tuesday, December 2, at 8:45 p.m. we begin our second broadcast of "The Nature of the Universe" — a series of eight half-hour talks on "The New Cosmology" by Fred Hoyle, a Cambridge mathematician.
